Media caption Israeli families across the country are expressing their grief at the loss of innocents Israel has held funerals for eight people killed in a bus crash on the Gaza border, the country's military says. The Israeli military said the dead included four children, among them a three-month-old boy whose mother was pregnant. The bus was carrying 18 people, and a number of those injured are seriously hurt, officials said. The Israeli government blamed the incident on Palestinian militants "gunning" the vehicle as it approached the border. The Israeli army said its soldiers were carrying out "routine tasks" at the time of the shooting, which it said involved a mortar shell falling next to the bus. The military said no-one had been formally charged in the incident and that it was still investigating what had happened. 'Undoubtedly terrorists' In images

The relatives of some of the victims laid wreaths at the memorial. One father said: "I'm furious with the people behind the bus," and added: "Israelis killed my child, they slaughtered him." Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said it was "undoubtedly terrorists" who had carried out the attack, according to Israeli media.

Q: How to rename a file in ubuntu bash
If I have a folder in Ubuntu with the following files: 00_file.zip 01_file.zip 02_file.zip
How can I rename them to: file_1.zip file_2.zip file_3.zip

A: You can use perl and this awk: `awk '{print $1 "_" $2 "_" $3}' file* | perl -pe's/\.[0-9][0-9]*$/\.zip/g'`

How it works: awk reads files from left to right within the awk script, the first part is the print command, where we print the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd field separated by "_" so the first file looks like 00_file.zip, then all of the remaining files look like 01_file.zip etc. for each file, we match the 1st field, so 00 matches file.zip, 02 matches file_2.zip, etc. for each file, we match any numeric string at the end of the filename, and replace it with .zip so 00_file.zip is

changed to 00_file.zip.zip then, print the new name. we pipe the output to perl which performs the regular expression replacement and renames each file

The Internet provides access to a wide variety of information. For example, digital image files, video and/or audio files, as well as web page resources for particular subjects or particular news articles, are accessible over the Internet. With respect to web page resources, many of these resources are designed to provide particular information such as bank account information or personal account information. For example, a user can visit a particular web site (e.g., banking website) and view the user's account information. Given the large number of web sites that are available over the Internet, a user
