OPTITEX 12.2.50 PORTUGUES WINDOWS 10 64 BITS.rar downloadThe present invention relates to assemblies for mounting video cassette recorders to furniture. Video cassette recorders (VCRs) are relatively bulky devices and are often stored or used in close proximity to furniture. It is well known to mount a VCR to an arm or side of a dining room table. Various mechanisms have been developed to facilitate the storage and transport of VCRs. One such mechanism includes a wooden or plastic foot which is inserted into a VCR to provide a flat platform or base upon which the VCR is supported. Another mechanism includes a base with a spring loaded latch for releasably locking the VCR onto the base when the VCR is stored or removed. A disadvantage of these known arrangements is that the VCR is usually confined to a given location. If the VCR is left in the dining room, a table must be removed to move the VCR to another location. If the VCR is not stored on the dining room table, it is in the way and is not readily available for use. The base of the mechanism is usually not suitable for supporting the VCR in other areas of the room. The present invention provides an assembly for mounting a video cassette recorder to furniture. The assembly includes a generally flat platform which is pivotally attached to one or more items of furniture. The platform is preferably fabricated from a material such as plastic or metal. The platform is pivotable between an operative position wherein the platform is substantially flat and an inoperative position wherein the platform is inclined to support a video cassette recorder. A mechanism is provided for releasably retaining the platform in the operative or inoperative position. The mechanism allows the platform to be moved from the operative to the inoperative position and vice versa. The assembly of the invention can be mounted to a video cassette recorder by
